Dear Mr. Alnaz Jiwa and Mr. Tajdin

I enclose a photocopy of an Affirmation signed by His Highness on Wednesday in Boston in front of a notary. We are authorized to make the original available for your inspection in our offices if you so wish.

If there continues to be any doubt whatsoever about His Highness's authorization of this lawsuit and his wishes in respect of this matter, and if you therefore do not follow through with the promises contained in your defence, it may become necessary to circulate this more widely. In any event we reserve the right to circulate this Affirmation as necessary.

I am sending this letter to your respective e-mail addresses but we will also deliver a copy of the letter on our firm's letterhead to Mr. Alnaz Jiwa's address in Toronto, in case you should like to have a hard copy of the letter and enclosure. In addition, the hard copy of the letter will be sent to Mr. Amin Tajdin's address in Montreal because we do not have an e-mail address for him. Please send this e-mail to him or provide us with an e-mail address.

Yours very truly,

Brian W. Gray

Subject: Questions about your letter 14 May 2010

Dear Mr Brian Gray,

I have a few questions about your intended handling of this case, as expressed in your email dated 14th May, 2010.

In your email dated 14th May, 2010, instead of saying something along the lines that non-compliance would result in a continuation of the court procedures, you instead state that: "it may become necessary to circulate this more widely. In any event we reserve the right to circulate this Affirmation as necessary". Is this a formally accepted legal maneuver?

I'm sure you will agree with me that the above statements sound very much like a threat to further slander my reputation. Would you please clarify where your instructions for this maneuver come from as the Imam would never threaten a Murid [Disciple.] I very much doubt that The Aga Khan would tolerate such activities by the very people who are seeking to serve Him. This comes as a surprise from a lawyer of your standing, and this raises more questions about the case.

In your email you said that you need Amin Tajdin's email address. I have already told your assistant Kristin Wall by email on 4th May 2010 to send all my correspondence to Alnaz Jiwa's address with email copy to me. Why would you need Amin Tajdin's email? He is not a defendant or a plaintiff in this case. To me this is a further attempt, by the usurper plaintiff, to discredit and harass my family.

Regards,

Nagib Tajdin
